of a profession for a boy[3] but in England the mother who takes as much trouble for her daughter's future as for her son's career is the exception rather than the rule.

Herbert in his " Jacula Prudentem " says :

" Marry your son when you will ; your daughter when you can,[55] and how many women in modern England could write of this system in tears of blood.